VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's Social Credit government has issued a glossy full-color magazine called B.C. Economic Development, three years after criticizing the New Democratic Party government of propaganda for a similar publication titled Land.

The current government is sending its 28-page magazine to businesses and professionals in the province and to investors outside B.C., a spokesman said Monday.

He said 75,000 copies have been mailed at a cost of $70,000, or just under $1 apiece.

FINED $1,000

Davis quits legislature

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former transport minister Jack Davis, 62, was fined $1,000 and placed on probation for two months Monday in county court for defrauding the provincial government of $1,074 for misrepresenting his travel expenses.

The sentence came after character witnesses appeared for the former federal Liberal cabinet minister and he announced his resignation as a member of Premier Bill Bennett's Social Credit government.

The premier could not be reached for comment on the resignation. There was no word of a by-election date.

Sherman Hood, lawyer for Davis, had asked for a conditional discharge after telling Judge J. J. Anderson that Davis submitted his letter of resignation to Harvey Schroeder, Speaker of the legislature, on Friday.

The fine and probation means Davis will have a criminal record.

The lawyer said Davis decided to resign Thursday after meeting with his constituents. Davis said in his letter to the Speaker that he had been considering resigning for some time.

None of his former Social Credit colleagues were called.

The character witnesses included Senators Ray Perrault, Ed Lawson, and George Van Roggen, former B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum, former Liberal MP Doug Hogarth, and West Vancouver Mayor Peter Jones.

"I have always found him to be honest, reliable, and dedicated to his work," Shrum said of Davis. "I have never heard anyone speak disparagingly of Davis."

Perrault testified that he often traveled by air with him when Davis was in the federal cabinet.

"He was always deeply immersed in work and was obviously carrying out his duties as a minister of the Crown," Perrault said, in a reference to the minister's airline work habits.

"He had a first-rate reputation among ministers of the Crown," Perrault said Davis, during his service as a federal cabinet minister, often returned unexpended portions of his department's expenses.

Lawson, the international vice-president and a Canadian director of the Teamsters Union, described Davis as "somewhat square and scrupulously honest."

Van Roggen, a lawyer, said he often traveled by air with Davis and noted that he always spent the entire flight time working on cabinet business.

In Victoria, Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said he regrets "the whole tragic set of circumstances of Mr. Davis leaving politics."

"I hope that the future will give him some comfort and security for himself and his family. It has been a tragic experience for him and for his family."

During Davis's trial, court was told that he obtained refunds after changing first-class air tickets, paid for by the government, to economy. The refunds, ranging up to $204 a ticket, were sent directly to Davis at his request. Davis was found not guilty of theft. He has also said he will appeal the fraud conviction.

Davis had served as minister of energy, transport and communications but was relieved of his cabinet post in April when Premier Bill Bennett learned of an RCMP investigation into the minister's use of airline tickets.

Hike exports C.Z. head states

VANCOUVER (CP) — By the year 2000, the Canadian forest industry will have to increase lumber exports by more than 50 per cent just to meet the demands of its current markets, the chairman and chief executive officer of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. said Monday.

Robert Rogers made that forecast while addressing the opening session of an international conference on transport and handling in the pulp and paper industry. About 400 industrialists from 20 countries are attending the conference.

"To meet the demand of just its traditional markets in the U.S.A., Western Europe and Japan, the Canadian forest industry will have to increase exports in lumber by more than 50 per cent, wood pulp by 100 per cent and paper products by almost the same amount," he said.

Rogers said the estimates come from government projections of market expansions.

He said that by 2000, people might well be turning to forests as a source of new fuels.

"Renewable resources like forest will be even in greater demand," he said. "They will be in demand not only for shelter, communicating and education, but also, possibly, as seedstock from which a new breed of fuel chemicals and food will emerge."

Rogers said Canada now cuts far less of its timber than do other, less-well-endowed nations, he said. "Canada has about 13 per cent of the world's supply of soft woods and cuts about 11 per cent of the world's harvest. In contrast, the U.S.A. has 10 per cent of the world's supply but cuts 22 per cent of the world's harvest. Western Europe, with only six per cent of the supply, cuts 14 per cent."

Rogers said Canada now exports more than 60 per cent of its lumber, 35 per cent of its wood pulp and 60 per cent of its newsprint.

College closed

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — After most faculty members withdrew their services Monday, Cariboo College council announced a one-week closure of the college due to a labor dispute with 73 non-teaching employees.

At a meeting with students, college chairman Don Murray and acting principal Leo Perra also said that the college might remain closed until January.

During the one-week closure, college officials and representatives of Local 900, Canadian Union of Public Employees are to meet with labor ministry officials in an attempt to end the dispute, council officials said. The employees were locked out by the college in Aug. 18.

Perra said the lockout would remain in effect until the dispute is settled.

CARTER ON OFFENSIVE

Mid-east deal- fragile, hopeful

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter began a diplomatic and political offensive Monday in support of a fragile Middle East agreement which he said has "far more substance than anyone dreamed" when the summit meeting at Camp David, Md., started.

U.S. administration officials, eager to prevent Arab divisions from tearing the summit agreement apart, said Palestinians on the West Bank of the Jordan River probably will be running their own affairs within three months and that members of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) can participate in shaping the disputed area's future.

But even before Carter addressed a televised joint session of the U.S. Congress on Monday night, with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in attendance, there was mounting evidence how fragile the "framework for peace" really is.

Apparently in disagreement with concessions Sadat made at Camp David, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Kamel resigned, just as his predecessor, Ismail Fahmy, had done last year to protest the Egyptian president's historic peace overture to Israel.

The Camp David agreement showed a further sign of strain when Begin told Israeli reporters that Israel does not consider itself bound to forego establishing further settlements on the West Bank.

A senior U.S. official, briefing reporters on terms of the agreement, said Israel is prohibited from setting up new settlements for at least five years. Beyond that period, the agreement is silent.

The official, who asked not to be named, said that after all the terms of the agreement are examined, other Arab countries will recognize that Sadat achieved "many of the long-desired objectives of the Arab world."

To bolster support for the accord, Carter telephoned Jordan's King Hussein "in the hope and expectation" — as the U.S. official put it — that Hussein will lend his crucial active support to the peace process.

At a White House briefing for 75 members of Congress, Carter said the 13-day summit which ended with signing of the peace framework Sunday night was "one of the most historic events I have experienced since I have been in political office."

Carter said the talks produced "far more substance than anyone dreamed," and he added:

"It's not just an outline of general principles. It gets to the heart of every single issue that has divided Israel and Egypt."

For his part, Begin announced he has won a U.S. promise to build Israel two new air bases in the Negev Desert to replace those in the Sinai being returned to Egyptian control.

Begin also said Israel plans to maintain a military presence on the West Bank, even after the five-year transition toward Palestinian autonomy in the region. U.S. officials confirmed that the agreement would allow 6,000 Israeli soldiers to remain on the West Bank—but away from population centres.

Asked in an NBC News interview whether Israeli troops might remain on the West Bank for five, 10 or 15 years, Begin replied: "Yes, why not? Yes, possibly."

He said Israel wants a peace settlement with Jordan, Syria and Lebanon. "The idea is not to have one separate peace treaty between Israel and Egypt but to reach a comprehensive peace settlement," he said.

The senior U.S. official listed five major provisions of the agreements to illustrate U.S. contentions that Sadat had achieved some of the Arab world's goals in its 30-year conflict with Israel.

TERRACE GETS TEN

Employment grants total $3 million

By Nixon Baker

Community organizations throughout northwestern B.C. will receive over three million dollars in Canada Works funding this fall, it was announced today by Skeena M.P. Iona Campagnolo.

Seventy-six community oriented projects will receive $3,017,542 in federal government grants and will carry out a wide range of work from community and plays, sound development to mission restoration.

The largest project in the Skeena riding is in Terrace and will provide employment skills to youth that are presently unemployed. This project will receive a grant of $141,960 and will employ 16 people.

"There are still some projects which have not completed the approval process," stated Campagnolo. "As soon as they are, the rest of our constituents' Canada Works funding will be announced."

As well as the largest grant, Terrace will receive nine other grants which it is expected will create 53 new jobs this fall.

Included in the grants is $28,728 for an Adult Basic Skills program sponsored by the Terrace and District Community Services under the co-ordination of Frances Long. The purpose of the program is to "undertake a basic literary and mathematics program in the greater Terrace area and will serve three separate target groups. Five new jobs should be created.

The Terrace Women's Growth Centre will receive a grant of $37,128 to sponsor self development workshops, compile information and provide related services as required. Four new jobs should result.

The women's growth program is sponsored by the Terrace and District Community Services Society which will also receive two other grants:

WORTH $132,937

Kitimat receives four

Four community projects in Kitimat will share grants of $132,937 under the Canada Works Plan, Skeena M.P. Iona Campagnolo announced today.

Largest of the four grants will go to the Kitimat Workshop Training Program under the direction of W.S. Kimble. Purpose of the program is to assist the workshop by having participants take more direct responsibility in certain areas and thereby integrate them into the community.

School District 80 (Kitimat) will receive $35,280 to develop and implement models one to collect information on family violence, and the main grant to provide disadvantaged youth, presently unemployed, with attitude, work habits and marketable skills essential to employment in the private sector.

The Golden Rule Employment Agency will receive a grant of $28,392 to assist individuals in obtaining employment.

The Northwest Community College is spon-which will bridge the communications gap between school and home. It is suggested that this will create five new jobs.

A project with the title of F.A.S.T. which stands for Fast Accurate Stenographic Typing will receive $28,392 to assist organizations with their work load, especially as it relates to stenographic services.

The Kitimat Community Services Society will receive $35,280 to establish a body of people whose main aim will be to develop a multifaceted approach to community development.

soring a Northern Adult Basic Education Project with Frank Cassidy as project manager. The mandate as outlined in the grant calls for continuing the adult basic literacy program and to expand it to include basics in mathematics, writing and communication skills. The project will be conducted in the Houston, Kitwano, Kitwanga, Moricetown, Kitsegukla and Kispiox areas.

Pauline Vaal Henke will head up a project for the Osborne Guest Home to provide assistance to those leaving the guest home and wishing to live independently in the community.

Some $48,300 will be available to the Terrace Association for the Mentally Retarded to run the Three Rivers Workshop.

Object of the workshop is to provide a supervised setting in which individuals will have the opportunity to become associated with a work-oriented environment.

The Kitselas Village council will receive a grant of $44,520 to provide major renovations to 10 houses on the Kitselas Reserve, and the Kermode Friendship Society will be given $37,128 to provide family services in relation to the objectives of the Kermode Friendship Society.

In grand total the projects represent a commitment of $435,876 in federal funds for the Terrace area.

Fulton slams Iona

Jim Fulton, federal NDP candidate for Skeena, charged today that Iona Campagnolo, MP for Skeena, is releasing misleading and at times false statements to the media.

"This is a most unfortunate state of affairs," Fulton said in a press release, "and let's hope that all parties will attempt to give clear, concise consideration to what is opinion and what is fact." A recent release by Campagnolo stated that the Export Development Corporation does not use the taxpayer's money. This is simply not true as demonstrated by the following quotations from a recent EDC publication: "The corporation administers certain loan and insurance programs for Canada and the funds required for these operations are provided by Canada," and "historically EDC has raised the majority of its funds for lending operations by borrowing from the Consolidated Revenue fund of the government."

"It is clear beyond question that the EDC deals in and uses Canadian taxpayers' money, and for this reason Canadians have a real interest in such things as the EDC funding of a copper development in Panama," Fulton said. "In a riding where close to 1,000 men and women have been laid off work in the copper industry, it is nonsense to promote competition in Panama, especially with our money," Fulton said.

"The public has a right to know the facts, and slick press releases don't make bad political judgements any easier to swallow," Fulton said.

Campagnolo also stated that Stewart won't lose any jobs over the development of a $1.4 billion copper mine in Panama. "Perhaps the MP for Skeena is unaware the Granduc Mine has already closed," Fulton said.

"The Financial Times recently pointed out, two months ago, that EDC was given the authorization to risk up to $26 billion, that's more than $1,000 for each Canadian.

Vote close on gains tax

HALIFAX (CP) — Two separate proposals to abolish the capital gains tax were narrowly defeated Monday by delegates attending the 49th annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Both votes were in favor of abolition but did not carry because they lacked the required two-thirds majority. The first vote was 85-34 in favor of abolition but only 139 of the 157 voting delegates were present when the issue first came to the floor after a vigorous debate.

In the afternoon session, the vote on an Ottawa resolution was 69-50 for abolition.

The first debate began innocently enough when Mitch Spiegel of Sudbury, Ont., rose to propose a change in the wording of the preamble of a resolution to encourage entrepreneurial investment in Canada by the chamber's monetary and fiscal policy committee.

The preamble called for liberalization of capital gains tax rules but Spiegel objected, saying the tax should be abolished.

While his objection was met with applause, some delegates defended the committee's position for an adjustment in the tax.

One delegate expressed the chief contention of the pro-tax segment when he said:

"If you abolish the capital gains tax, the government will get it somewhere else because they need their pound of flesh."

The committee's position was that the government would probably be receptive to a change in the tax but not elimination of it.

One proposed adjustment was to apply the tax only to corporations, not individuals.

Don Selman of Vancouver received loud applause when he spoke in favor of abolition, saying the tax was not a substantial revenue earner for the government and was a "giant constrictor" of the tax system.

The tax on sales of assets or equity was introduced in the early 1970s amid much controversy as a means of establishing equity in the tax system.

The tax applies to such activities as profits made by corporations on sales of assets such as buildings or factories, or on individuals who make gains on sales of stocks or personal assets such as art or jewelry.

Tax on capital gains accounts for less than one per cent of the government's total tax revenue. Some delegates claimed that these modest extra revenues do not justify the cost of administering "the extremely complex provisions which they entail."

Delegates to the three-day convention, which ends today, dealt with a number of other resolutions, including one calling for elimination or reduction of government regulations which was approved.

They endorsed a resolution—the one which contained the controversial preamble on capital gains—to increase the basic investment tax to 10 per cent and to cut the basic corporate tax rate by one percentage point a year in a five-year period starting Jan. 1, 1979.

A proposal from a delegate from Saul Ste. Marie, Ont., seeking a proper balance between the absolute requirements of the environment and the "need to sustain the health and growth of industry" was withdrawn but then later reintroduced and approved following a procedural vote.

The Ottawa delegation pushed through an amendment to a Vancouver resolution on mineral resources policy urging the federal government to provide Canadian producers with the same kind of financial assistance given to foreign industrial developers.

The reference was to such federal bodies as the Export Development Corp., which provides loans and credits to foreigners to encourage investment but not to Canadians.

Approved was a resolution urging Ottawa to encourage an aggressive reforestation program. The concern here was for recent federal spending cuts which have affected forestry research grants.

Delegates were concerned because forestry is a major industry in at least five Canadian provinces. An amendment was swiftly endorsed urging a joint federal-provincial effort to use monies saved from cuts in unemployment insurance to create jobs in reforestation projects.

One delegate said such a move could create 400,000 jobs in the industry.

On Canadian monetary policy, the convention accepted a watered down resolution urging the federal government to take the lead in reducing the governments' share.

TROOPS MOVE IN

Guerilla strongholds attacked

MANAGUA (AP) — Government forces were airlifted into positions around Esteli in northern Nicaragua on Monday to attack the last guerrilla strongholds there.

Esteli has been in rebel hands since Sept. 9 although the national guard said Saturday it had overpowered sniper positions in the town of 30,000.

Earlier, the guard, Nicaragua's 7,500-member army, recaptured the towns of Masaya, Leon, Chinandega and Penas Blancas, routing rebels who are led by guerrillas intent on overthrowing the authoritarian government of President Anastasio Somoza.

Travellers from the Esteli area, including some who had flown over the town, said it looked dead. They reported no movement of civilians or automobiles. A fire burned near the centre of town.

Troops were lifted to a field north of Esteli to attack from the north and west, the travellers said. Rebels held the high ground leading into the city from the south. National guard forces manned a checkpoint on the Pan American Highway about five kilometres south of the town and barred journalists from entering.

Mopping-up action was reported from Chinandega, which the guard wrested from the rebels Sunday. There was scattered shooting overnight in Managua where businessmen vowed to continue a general strike they called Aug. 25 to pressure Somoza to resign. Correspondents in southern Nicaragua reported occasional firing near the outpost of Penas Blancas on the Costa Rican border. Guerrillas fought a nine-hour battle with the national guard garrison there Sunday before withdrawing into Costa Rica. The guerrillas, led by the Sandinista National Liberation Front, vowed to try anew to take Penas Blancas, establish a provisional government and invite international recognition.

An investigative team from the Organization of American States was in Costa Rica to examine Costa Rican claims that Nicaraguan forces crossed the border last week and fired on Costa Rican civilians.

Somoza complained that Costa Rica gave shelter to what he says are Communists trying to overthrow him.

Nicaragua also said a Venezuelan fighter plane on temporary assignment in Costa Rica supported rebels in their Sunday foray against Penas Blancas. In Caracas, Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez said Monday the charge is "absolutely false."

There are no reliable reports on casualties in the fighting which erupted throughout the country Sept. 9. But those who visited the recaptured towns say the toll was high. Residents claimed the national guard was executing people suspected of being snipers. Somoza declared martial law throughout the country last week.

Estimates vary as to the strength of the Sandinistas. Some put the figure near 400, but Somoza says there are between 1,000 and 2,000. Thousands of Nicaraguans back the guerrillas and have joined them or support them with food, information, shelter or money.

Red Cross sources in Leon, the second-largest city, said they counted 300 dead and about 3,000 wounded when allowed back into the city by the national guard. They said about 7,000 refugees from Leon reported to Red Cross centres but that many more had fled the city.

New film outlines darker side of 50's

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Were the 1950s all high school proms, beach parties and happy days?

You might think so, judging from how that era has been portrayed in movies and on television. But there was another, darker side of that postwar decade, and it is being portrayed in a new film, Heart Beat.

Shamberg said the idea for Heart Beat began when he was driving through San Francisco a couple of years ago. He learned that Cassidy's widow still lived in the Los Gatos house she had shared with her husband and Kerouac, and she had written a book about their life together.

Nick Nolte stars as Neal Cassidy, a free soul of the Fifties. Sissy Spacek is his durable wife Carolyn, and John Heard plays Jack Kerouac, writer laureate of the Beat Generation. Cassidy is the hero of Kerouac's near-classic On The Road.

Heart Beat is being produced by Orion Films-Warner Brothers by two men who are too young to move known much about the Beat Generation when it was happening: Michael Shamberg, 34, and Alan Greisman, 31.

Shamberg is Chicago-born, educated at Washington University, St. Louis, and Time-Life, maker of television documentaries including the 1976 Bob Dylan special. While Greisman was minding the store, Shamberg came to a lunch interview to explain the project.

"So far the 1950s have been shown like cotton candy in films like Grease," said the producer. "We're making an R-rated view of the Fifties."

"It seemed like an ideal subject for a movie," said Shamberg. "Cassidy and Kerouac had one foot in the beat generation and one in the counter-culture of the 1960s. All three of them lived together and had relationships—this was in the Fifties when it wasn't being done."

"Cassidy had a family and a home, and he tried to have a normal life but failed. He never grew up. He was torn between staying home or going on the road. He went on the road with Kerouac. Carolyn was the lure for him to return, but he could never be content to stay home."

"Both men died in their early forties. Kerouac from alcohol, Cassidy from drugs."

Shamberg combined forces with Greisman, who had also been wanting to make a feature film. Greisman raised development money from his family and found a writer, John Byrum, who agreed to fashion a script on the condition that he could make his debut as a director.

DEATH TOLL UP

More after shocks

TABAS, Iran (AP) — Aftershocks rolled Monday across the parched countryside of northeastern Iran where at least 15,000 persons were believed killed in a giant quake that demolished 40 towns and villages and badly damaged 60 others.

In this oasis city, hit by the quake's epicentre, the dead were stretched out under the palm trees, their bodies frozen in grotesque postures of sudden death and wrapped in white sheets or colorful handwoven cloth.

The town's minarets, mosques and mud-brick houses crumbled under the force of the Saturday evening tremors, giving this ancient city about 640 kilometres southeast of the capital of Tehran the appearance of a flattened sand castle. Only a few buildings escaped major damage.

The quake, Iran's worst this year, killed an estimated three-quarters of Tabas' 13,000 residents. Most of the survivors were seriously injured and the most severely hurt were flown to Tehran for treatment.

Officials feared the death toll from the 7.7 Richter scale quake would swell above the 15,000 mark as reports were received from remote villages surrounding Tabas, where thousands were believed buried in the rubble.

The quake, which was felt throughout two-thirds of the country and even shook buildings in the capital, struck as people were sitting down for their evening meal or lounging in front of their houses in the 32-degree heat.

"I was sitting in front of my house by the pond," said a man who identified himself as Hassan. "It was dark. Then all of a sudden I fell to the ground and there was a great roar and screams."

Although Hassan's mud-brick home collapsed around his family, they escaped serious injury. They now sit on the sidewalk, surviving on watermelons and waiting for the army to help them recover their valuables from the pile of bricks that was once their home.

As soon as rescue workers found a body in the wreckage, grieving relatives and friends went about the grim task of identification, slapping and striking themselves in their ritual of grief. The workers spirited the bodies off for a hurried burial.

Gravediggers bit into the coarse, hard earth, scraping out shallow graves. Unable to keep up with the steady procession of bodies brought by truck and car, the dead lay in the sun as a Muslim clergyman prayed over them.

The Iranian army sent 700 soldiers, four medical teams, and numerous rescue workers to help house about 1,000 survivors in tents along Tabas' dirt airport runway.

Meanwhile, new tremors were felt Monday. They lasted only a few moments, but residents feared a second major quake.

Reports from the village of Boshryeh, about 40 kilometres northeast of Tabas, said only 26 persons were injured and no one had been killed. However, the village of Duhaq, 40 kilometres to the southeast, was destroyed and 2,000 were feared dead or injured.

An earthquake registering 6.5 on the Richter scale rocked the same area on Aug. 31, 1968. Tabas suffered some damage and 12,000 people in the area were killed.

Few problems seen

Schools have been back in operation for over a week now. Surprisingly few problems have arisen, according to school Trustee Mrs. J. Krause.

There were a few minor busing difficulties which are almost inevitable during the first week of school. Most of these have now been cleared up with the few remaining to be settled shortly.

WEATHER

A storm is moving in off the coast of Prince Rupert, bringing with it cloudy weather with frequent showers and brisk winds this afternoon. More of the same type of weather is expected for tomorrow, with possibly a slight improvement on Thursday and Friday. The expected high for today is 12 degrees Celsius, with a low tonight of around 8. It looks as though the sunshine we've been enjoying the past few days will be short lived, but hopefully it will be back for a return engagement sometime in the near future.

Temperatures and conditions are close to normal for this time of year however, and it looks as though autumn will soon be upon us.

Construction of various types took place over the summer months. Superintendent of Maintenance, Mr. L.R. Heller reporting all projects have been handled to his satisfaction.

A new music room addition at the Hazelton Secondary School has been completed and is now in use. The new Elementary Junior Secondary school at Kitwanga should be completed by October 15, which will mean a finish two months ahead of the original projection.

The adventure playground at Copper Mountain has been completed and is currently in use.

A second coat of paint has been applied to the Rotary Tennis Courts after several delays caused by weather conditions. It is anticipated that line painting and installation of nets will be completed by September 20.

A report on the renovations required, and financial costs involved, with the Hart Farm project will be prepared for school board consideration at a future meeting.

POLICE NEWS

Vandals continue to harass downtown businesses. Four more locations had windows smashed during the weekend.

An RCMP spokesman explained that it is difficult to apprehend these people because they simply throw a rock or bottle through a window, then quickly move out of the area.

Perhaps related to the vandalism is the fact that some 32 liquor charges were laid by the RCMP between Friday and Monday the police said. These were mostly offences connected with consuming liquor in a public place or drinking alcoholic beverages while under the legal age of 19. All were charged under the liquor control act.

Two businesses were broken into during the weekend. McEwan Motors was entered and a set of keys taken which allowed two youths to steal one of the cars parked on the lot. Two juveniles will be charged. No names were released.

Blue Ribbon Bakery was also broken into where a sum of money was taken. The case is still under investigation.

Takeovers continue in the oil industry

CALGARY (CP) — Five major petroleum companies were the targets in a $1-billion burst of corporate takeovers and acquisitions since June and one financial analyst says it's not over yet.

"Oil companies now realize the cheapest way to find oil is to buy another company," the analyst said. "And the cheapest place to buy a company is often on the stock exchange."

In the last 3½ months there have been significant changes, either completed or pending, in the ownership and stock control of Ashland Oil Canada Ltd., Siebens Oil and Gas Ltd., TransCanada Pipeline Ltd., Husky Oil Ltd. and Universal Gas Co. Ltd.

Speculation in the Alberta investment community lists Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum Ltd., Canada Northwest Land Ltd., Merland Explorations Ltd., Canadian Reserve Oil and Gas Ltd. and smaller companies such as Sundance Oil Canada Ltd. and Peyto Oil Ltd. as takeover candidates.

All are based in Calgary and have extensive Western Canadian oil and natural gas interests, although some are considered attractive for their foreign holdings.

A frantic bidding war for Husky Oil in June set the tone for the summer takeovers.

Petro-Canada and Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles, with bids valued at more than $560 million each, tried to out-muscle each other to purchase all Husky shares, only to have that manoeuvring scuttled by Alberta Gas Trunk Lines Co. Ltd.

Alberta Gas Trunk surprised everyone when it announced it had quietly purchased 35 per cent of Husky stock—a figure that it later increased to 36 per cent.

In August, Dome Petroleum Ltd. became the largest shareholder in TransCanada Pipeline when it acquired 13 per cent of the pipeline company's stock from Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. and the pension fund of Canadian Pacific Ltd. Dome later purchased another seven per cent of the stock from a number of sellers, including Hume Oil Co. Ltd.

Dome then became involved in a complex takeover deal for Siebens. The result of that move, expected to be formally completed early next year, will see Siebens become a whollyowned subsidiary of Canpar Holdings Ltd., itself a whollyowned subsidiary of the Canadian National Railways pension fund. Dome will end up with about 76 per cent of Siebens assets and operate the company on behalf of Canpar.

The largest takeover agreement of the summer was the $502.5-million July offer of Kaiser Resources Ltd. of Vancouver for Ashland Oil Canada.

Kaiser must await foreign investment review agency approval for picking up the 83-per cent interest in the company owned by Ashland Oil Inc. of Kentucky before formally offering to purchase the remaining 17 per cent of the shares held by private shareholders.

The smallest and least complicated takeover was an offer in August by Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd. to purchase all the shares of Universal Gas Co. Ltd. of Calgary for $22.8 million. The deal must still be approved by the foreign investment review agency.

Fields applauded

ROCHDALE, England (Reuters) — British music hall performer Gracie Fields, 80, was applauded when she gave a farrowell performance in her hometown here Saturday night.

One of the most popular entertainers in the English-speaking world, Gracie, the Lancashire Lass, sang Sally. The Biggest Aspidochelone in the World and other favorites.

Her voice was loud and clear, and she broke into a dance as she sang I Could Have Danced All Night.

Gracie, who began life working in a north England cotton mill, has lived for many years on the Italian resort island of Capri with her Romanian husband Boris Alperovici.

Her performance Saturday opened a Rochdale Theatre which has been named after her. She was born over a fish and chip shop in Rochdale.

Trend favoring towns like ours

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Small Canadian towns and villages are a growing mecca for young lawyers. An unprecedented number of law-school graduates in Canada are setting up practices in small communities, and deans of a number of Canadian law schools are predicting a growing trend.

"The number of applicants for admission to law schools has more than doubled during the last decade," said Dean D. L. Johnston of the school of law, University of Western Ontario. "Consequently the number of graduates is also increasing to the point where there is a slight oversupply."

"The situation has not yet reached the crisis stage but graduates now are looking at smaller communities. Not only is there opportunity there but the close contacts in a smaller town and a lower cost in housing and cost of living have an attraction for today's graduates."

Of the 1,100 graduates emerging from law schools in Ontario each year, 140 are from Western.

Concern over the increased number of applicants for admission to Canadian law schools—Western had 2,650 last year for 150 places—was expressed by Johnston in a paper published by The Gazette, publication of the Law Society of Upper Canada, last winter.

In an interview, he suggested that Canada might follow the same course as the United States and England where many graduates from law schools turn to law-related careers.

"Law-related careers develop as the pressure increases," he said. "Both in the United States and England only about half of students who obtain law degrees go into practice."

"Here there are positions available in governments at federal, provincial and municipal levels. There are positions in law reform commissions, in the legal research field."

"Unions are beginning to employ lawyers. Bilingual law students are in a better position to advance to Crown attorneys in many areas today."

Encouragement will be given bilingual students at Western by a new student exchange program with Laval University in which two students from each university will attend classes at the other for a term.

A program launched by the federal department of justice in which 30 French-speaking law students attended an eight-week course at Western for two summers was highly successful the dean said.

The courses not only enabled the French-speaking students to have an insight into the common law system in English-speaking Canada but convinced many of them who were separatists that separatism is not necessarily the answer to Canada's problems.

Hooliganism called just harmless fun

OXFORD, England (CP) — Football hooliganism provides a "harmless" outlet for aggression which could take more violent forms, says a psychologist at Oxford University.

"Battles between rival groups on soccer terraces are an artificial form of violence rather than the real thing and few people really get hurt," writes Prof. Peter Marsh in his book, Aggro: The Illusion of Violence (Dent, London).

"By trying to eradicate aggro we end up with something far more sinister. Instead of social violence, we get non-social violence that manifests itself in random, gratuitous injury ..."

"By learning to live with aggro, we begin to see that illusions of violence are much preferable to the real violence which maims and kills."

Marsh sees displays of soccer "aggro" as a stylized performance in which the participants, wearing boots, scarves, denim jackets and team colors, follow a ritual of provocative behavior and insults leading to clashes.

It seems like a recipe for a blood-bath, he says, but really it is far from that. The blows land on protected shoulders or backs of heads and kicks are aimed at the buttocks, not stomachs or genitals.

"It is almost as though the participants are acting a scene of violence in a film."

They put on a show that is convincing and we are fooled by it."

Marsh sees "aggro" between rival gangs as an equivalent of tribal warfare in less developed societies.

"On the football terraces, fans have discovered just one way of being tribal. They don't live in tribes; in fact the housing estates on which many live are about as far removed from the image of a community as you can get."

Many schoolteachers were critical of the professor's talk of a "harmless outlet for aggression."

"This is just another way of saying that self-discipline and self-control are out of date," said Winifred Leathers, who teaches in a secondary school near Manchester.

"What is the use of calling ourselves a civilized society if we behave like hooligans and say it is just a harmless outlet for our feelings? This all started with the Freudian nonsense that you mustn't smack children when they need it because they will be repressed and frustrated."

"Experience shows that children who get smacked when they do wrong are much happier mentally because they know inwardly that someone cares about them. And it's much the same in school students like to think the teacher cares enough about them to control their behavior and help them become useful citizens."

"Oh, oh, I think I peaked too soon!"

ACCORDING TO POLL

Liberals up in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — An opinion poll released Sunday says that if a provincial election were held today the Quebec Liberal Party would garner 45 per cent of the vote, compared with 43 per cent for the governing Parti Quebecois.

The poll, conducted by the Institut Quebecois d'Opinion Publique for the weekly tabloid Dimanche-Matin, shows that the Union Nationale would receive four per cent.

In the November, 1976, general election the PQ received 41 per cent, the Liberals 34 per cent and the UN 17.

Despite the narrow preference for the Liberals, however, 53 per cent of respondents said they were generally satisfied with the present government, while 40 per cent were either dissatisfied or very dissatisfied.

Of the 721 respondents, 26 per cent favored either "independence" or "sovereignty-association," 35 per cent wanted a "renewed federalism," and 24 per cent favored the current federal system. The other 15 per cent were undecided.

The results seemed in line with other recent polls showing that more Quebecers favor a reformed federalism than favor independence. But the responses varied when the question was posed in another manner.

Asked how they would vote in a referendum if the PQ government asked for a "mandate" to negotiate sovereignty-association with Ottawa, 38.6 per cent said they would vote yes, while 36.5 per cent would vote no. The remaining 24.9 per cent were undecided.

Premier Levesque has been critical of past polls which phrased the choice in terms of "separation," a term the premier dislikes. Voters have generally expressed more sympathy for "sovereignty-association," the PQ's term for political independence coupled with continued economic association with Canada.

It is generally agreed that the phrasing of the question will play a major role in the referendum, and the PQ came under heavy attack from Liberal Leader Claude Ryan last week when some ministers suggested that the question would centre on provincial tax powers rather than outright independence.

The Liberal party appears to have made gains among English voters at the expense of the Union Nationale since November, 1976.

Only 9 per cent of the 104 English-speaking Quebecers who responded said they would vote for the Parti Quebecois, while 72 per cent would vote Liberal, and none at all for the UN.

Among the 617 French-speaking persons interviewed, 39 per cent said they would vote PQ, and 30 per cent Liberal.

Environment Minister Marcel Leger, one of the ministers charged with preparing strategy for the independence referendum, said Sunday the preponderance of English opposition to the PQ may create serious problems in the referendum.

Leger said that far more than 50 per cent of the French vote would have to be won to balance the negative English vote.

Ryan noted that although the poll indicates a rise in his party's popularity, "we attach a lot more importance to the organization of the party in view of the elections."

Union Nationale Leader Rodrigue Biron blamed the Liberals and PQ for "the confusion they have thrown into the constitutional debate," and said the polarization between the two major parties is dangerous.

The Institut Quebecois d'Opinion Publique is a Montreal-based firm which often conducts political opinion polls within the province.

Writer claims Oswald agent

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Soviet writer Yulian Semyonov says Lee Harvey Oswald was a Chinese agent and his assassination of President Kennedy was planned jointly by Peking and the Mafia.

Semyonov says the linkman between China and the U.S. underworld was Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby, who shot Oswald two days after the president's death to prevent him from revealing the plot.

The Soviet version, one of several that have been published in Moscow during the last 15 years, appears in the first of a series of articles by Semyonov in the weekly Ogonyok.

Publication of his theory, which he partly bases on information gathered during a visit to Dallas, marks the first attempt by the Soviet Union to implicate China in the assassination, which Soviet commentators have previously put down to a right-wing plot.

The appearance of the theory comes as the Soviet Union is intensifying denunciations of China and warnings to the West not to trust Peking. It also coincides with new hearings in the U.S. Congress on events surrounding the assassination.

Semyonov says Oswald might have visited China or made contact with Peking agents while serving as a marine in Japan and Taiwan in the late 1950's.

A recent British book on the Chinese Secret Service, the Soviet writer says, records that Peking intelligence officers in 1969 gave a dossier on Oswald to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

"If Oswald was never in the Chinese people's republic and was never linked with Chinese intelligence, then how could the (Peking) secret service have a dossier on him?" Semyonov asks.

Oswald's arrival in Moscow in 1959 and request for Soviet citizenship, Semyonov suggests, was part of a long-term plan to link him with the Soviet Union in the minds of U.S. citizens.

Entries in a diary, written in Minsk where Oswald worked for a year before returning to the U.S., praised the idea of communes, which the Chinese were then developing, and used Chinese language in calling the Soviet Union imperialist, the writer says.

Semyonov, whose series is to be continued in Ogonyok during the next few weeks, notes that while in the early 1960s President Kennedy was calling for a new relationship with Moscow, China "was more and more insistently talking of the inevitability of war."

China in 1963 refused to sign the partial nuclear test ban treaty and denounced the U.S. President's speeches as "insane raving," the Soviet writer records, leaving the reader to draw his own conclusions about Peking's possible course of action.

The Chinese, Semyonov says, were linked to the Mafia through the narcotics trade. Hawaii, he says, is one transfer point from where the "Mafia secret services" sent hard drugs to the U.S. and in Las Vegas, he adds, "Mafiosi linked with Peking also lived in heroin."

Ruby, Semyonov says, was a key figure in the narcotics business and may himself have visited Hawaii or Las Vegas when he disappeared from Dallas briefly five weeks before the assassination.

Mid-east peace said possible by Christmas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace between Egypt and Israel by Christmas.

A vision, perhaps, among men of goodwill in the Middle East, but not a rational expectation until President Anwar Sadat flew to Jerusalem last November.

And then, as Sadat and Begin drifted into acrimonious disagreement over succeeding months, no more than a vision again.

But now, after the 12-day Camp David summit, peace between Egypt and Israel is a real possibility—within three months, in fact, if they can settle the remaining issues.

The thorniest, perhaps, is whether Jewish settlers are to remain in Sinai after the territory is returned to Egypt.

The framework for peace negotiated at Camp David does not provide a solution because Sadat and Begin might not agree on one.

Allowing Jewish settlers to stay will clash with Sadat's notion of Arab sovereignty. Dismantling the outposts might tarnish Begin's image at home as protector of settlers there and on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The problem now is in the hands of the negotiators and the Israeli Knesset (parliament), to whom Begin is deferring.

An even greater problem is the uncertain future of the West Bank and whether Jordan's King Hussein is satisfied enough with Israel's concessions there to support Sadat.

To take the final step of concluding a peace treaty, Sadat might need at least Hussein on his side.

Sadat's overture to Israel last autumn prompted Syria, his ally in the 1973 Yom Kippur war, to break relations and led to strong Arab condemnation of the Egyptian leader.

The Egyptian president faces renewed attack now that he has agreed to the outline of a settlement. The rancor is certain to ring out at a summit meeting of rejectionists, including Syria, Algeria, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization. It opens Wednesday in Damascus.

For the moment, though, the obstacles that remain are dwarfed by the achievements at the summit and the chance of ending the 30-year-old conflict between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

For President Carter there may be dividends, too.

"Mr. President," Begin said, "you inscribed your name forever in the history of two ancient civilized peoples, the people of Egypt and the people of Israel."

ENVIRONMENTALISTS SAY

Dam questionable economics

VANCOUVER (CP) — New dams and generating plants envisioned by British Columbia Hydro chairman Robert Bonner will become money-losers when the export market dwindles in the next quarter century, the head of B.C.'s major conservationist group says.

"Bonner is assuming we can sell power to the United States—but Americans have a stated policy of getting away from external suppliers of energy," says Cliff Stainsby, executive director of the Canadian Scientific, Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC), headquartered in Vancouver.

The long-term losers in the venture is B.C.'s forestry, fishing, and agricultural industries, and the natural environment, he said. As well, more dam construction would not dent B.C.'s unemployment figures, while Hydro would be saddled with enormous cash-flow deficits.

Stainsby, and his assistant Terry Chantler were commenting on Bonner's statement Friday that construction of new dams and generating plants in B.C. should be speeded up so the province can become a major exporter of electricity.

Bonner told the legislature's Crown corporations committee that if California continues its policy of not building major new power projects because of environmental objections, the market for B.C. electricity is "a simple exercise in optimistic imagination."

But Chantler says a report commissioned for the U.S. Department of Energy this year indicates that virtually all California domestic energy needs could be met within 25 years by renewable energy sources such as solar and wind.

"Bonner is relying on the sale of power to provide the cash flow for all his new dam projects but it is a tremendous gamble he's taking with B.C.'s resource industries at stake," said Chantler.

The Crown corporation, according to SPEC spokesmen, is already $4 billion in debt, accounting for 69 per cent of the province's total direct and guaranteed debt.

Chantler says Bonner is wrong in arguing new Hydro dam projects will provide needed jobs.

"The Edison Electric Institute in the U.S. estimates that it takes $170,000 to create one job in the electric utilities industry. Conservation and small-scale renewable energy projects provide more jobs per dollar."

The SPEC officials said Bonner "assumes that the best and only power commodity is electricity," a concept which they say the U.S. has long ago discarded.

"Bonner is 10 to 15 years behind the times," said Stainsby. "He's still talking ideas that the U.S. has thrown out as either too expensive or environmentally unacceptable."

Stainsby said Hydro has been forced to modify its annual growth projections to 6.6 per cent from 10 per cent forecast two years ago.

He added that B.C. already produces more power than it needs and B.C. residents are becoming intolerant of plans for future electrical energy development.

"Hydro has plans for 45 more projects, proposals for every major river in B.C., including the Fraser ... but in the Kootenays where there are 12 or 14 Hydro dams, the residents are plain fed up with losing their valleys and wildlife so more and more power can be shipped south."

"The B.C. Energy Commission has suggested to the provincial government that we spend as much effort on conservation as we do on new supplies of energy. But that recommendation is being ignored by Hydro."

Another case of misuse of drugs

LONDON (AP) — Rock drummer Keith Moon cooked himself a steak breakfast, ate it in bed beside his Swedish fiancée and then took an overdose of sleeping pills which killed him, a coroner's court heard today.

Pathologist Prof. Keith Simpson testified that he found about twice the maximum safe level of the sedative Heminevirin in Moon's blood.

Moon, the drummer for the rock band The Who, was found dead Sept. 7 in his London apartment.

Westminster Coroner Gavin Thurston said the evidence did not justify a conclusion of suicide.

Simpson, who said that he found the remains of about 32 Heminevirin tablets in the 31-year-old drummer's stomach, said that death was due to the massive overdose of the sedative.

Annette Walter-Lax, engaged to Moon the day before his death, testified that her longtime boyfriend sometimes exceeded prescribed doses of sleeping pills but said Moon would not take more than he knew was safe.

Israel security forces are on the alert for guerrilla attacks aimed at sabotaging the planned Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Moon's doctor, Dr. Geoffrey Dymond, said he had warned Moon about taking too many of the pills but said the drummer was in excellent health and usually cheerful.

Miss Walter-Lax, 23, testified that Moon had taken sleeping pills before going to sleep and woke up at about 7:30 a.m. to prepare himself a steak.

She said that Moon then went back to sleep but she did not see him take any more sleeping tablets.

She said that when she woke up in the late afternoon she could not hear Moon breathing and could not feel his heart beat.

When will they stop

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Palestinian guerrillas threw a grenade at a bus carrying Israeli soldiers in the occupied West Bank today in their first attack following news of the Camp David accord.

A military spokesman said no one was hurt in the incident in the town of El Bireh, north of Jerusalem. The grenade bounced off the bus and exploded on the ground.

Israel security forces are on the alert for guerrilla attacks aimed at sabotaging the planned Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Summit at a glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The highlights of the documents signed by U.S. President Carter.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin following the Middle East summit meeting at Camp David, Md.

Egypt-Israel peace agreement: A framework for a final treaty, to be signed by the two countries within three months.

—Egypt to regain sovereignty throughout the Sinai.

—Israel is entitled to ask for "security zones" and Egypt is limited to civilian use of airfields in the Sinai.

Three to nine months after the treaty is signed, Israel must pull back its forces from a "substantial" portion of the Sinai.

Sinai. Thereafter, diplomatic relations to be established. Final Israeli withdrawal two to three years after the treaty.

Still unresolved is the question of the fate of Israeli settlements in the occupied Arab areas.

The Middle East framework: A set of broad general principles which "may" serve as an outline for a final peace.

—Calls for a five-year transition period in the West Bank and Gaza, leading to full autonomy for the people there, who are predominantly Palestinian Arabs.

—Israel agrees not to establish new settlements during negotiations.

—Inhabitants of both areas are to elect representatives to participate in the peace process.

Now they wait for the votes

HALIFAX (CP) — A Nova Scotia provincial election campaign seemingly saturated with issues but which failed to inspire the electorate ended Monday with the three party leaders close to home in preparation for voting today.

Much of the public apathy during five weeks of campaigning was attributed to Premier Gerald Regan's election timing which included the final weeks of the prime August vacation period and the early September return to jobs and studies.

The issues of near-record unemployment, high electric power rates and inflation dominated the campaign but did not appear to attract the attention nor create the public debate that many had anticipated.

This suited the Liberals who campaigned on their eight-year record, promised increased assistance to the primary industries and blamed economic adversities on other governments.

They took some heat off the power-rate issue even before the campaign by promising subsidies to all classes of customers over three years to offset increases of 16 to 18 per cent. Coal-fired generation is expected to help stabilize rates in the early 1980s.

The Conservatives borrowed from last year's successful Manitoba campaign of Conservative Premier Stirling Lyon and that of Prince Edward Island Conservative leader J. Angus MacLean who almost toppled the Liberals this spring by hammering big government and wasteful spending.

The New Democrats, like the Conservatives, campaigned on a promise of new priorities for spending and greater assistance for small business. The latter promise was a priority in all three election platforms. Pundits detected a strong anti-government sentiment throughout the campaign but there was little indication whether this would manifest itself in votes for the Conservatives or New Democrats.

Voting at the end of last week in advance polls was described as light to moderate. The Liberals, seeking their third consecutive victory since 1970, held 30 of the 46 seats in the last legislature while the Conservatives had 12, the NDP three and there was one vacancy.

Six seats were added in redistribution in June, four in the Halifax metropolitan area, a Liberal stronghold in the 1970 and 1974 elections, and one each in Colchester and Cape Breton counties.

If Regan's government is reelected to its third term he will continue a 100-year Nova Scotia tradition that no elected premier has ever been defeated at the polls. Premiers who have been defeated since 1878 were appointed to the leadership, as was the case in recent years with Liberal premier Henry Hicks and Conservative G.I. Smith.

Major rallies throughout the province wound up the campaigns of all three parties on Saturday. Campaigning was toned down Sunday and Monday.

Regan took to the air in a fixed-wing aircraft Saturday and touched down at rallies across the province in a repeat of the man-on-the-move tactic which his party found highly successful in 1970 and 1974.

He stayed away from using helicopters this time after the Conservatives charged in the legislature this spring that Regan and his family had used a government-owned helicopter for a skiing holiday.

PARTY DRIED OUT

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A weekend rock concert that attracted about 1,500 people about 60 kilometres west of here turned out to be a sobering affair as RCMP seized about $3,500 worth of liquor at roadblocks set up near the concert gates.

Police at one roadblock also arrested a man believed to have escaped from Agassiz Mountain prison at Agassiz, B.C.

Several charges of possession of alcohol by minors, impaired driving and possession of drugs were also laid as a result of seizures made at the roadblocks on both roads leading to the concert at Lakeside Resort on Cluculz Lake.

Resort owner Eli Iankow said he had hundreds of complaints about the roadblocks and feels police overstepped their authority in making the seizures.

The liquor was seized under a section of the provincial liquor act.

Violations claimed

OTTAWA (CP) — An external affairs report that amounts to a devastating indictment of Cambodia for human rights violations has been turned over to United Nations officials.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson told reporters last week that the report reveals a shocking situation and he intends to raise the matter at the forthcoming meeting of the UN General Assembly.

The report, which tells of Khmer Rouge troops systematically beating persons to death, was compiled by Canadian embassy personnel in Thailand after interviews with 30 refugees.

It tells of arbitrary arrest, detention and execution, cruel and unusual punishment, religious suppression and denial of freedom of speech—even freedom to complain about lack of food.

In a submission to a sub-commission of the UN Commission on Human Rights, the government said the evidence constitutes "a strong prima facie case for an urgent investigation of the situation with respect to human rights in Democratic Kampuchea (Cambodia)."

"All evidence available to the government of Canada, including the recent interviews, indicates that Democratic Kampuchea has systematically violated the human rights of its citizens in a manner contrary to both the spirit and letter of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights." The report says: "Those arrested for real or imagined crimes are imprisoned without food." The House of Commons condemned the human rights violations last spring.

Do your Canada Savings Bonds mature this year?

Here are three easy steps to help you reinvest in new Canada Savings Bonds

1 Locate and identify your bonds

Two Series of Canada Savings Bonds mature this Fall:

- 1969/70 Series ($24) maturing November 1, 1978,
- 1968 Special Replacement Series (SR) maturing October 1, 1978.

Look for "S24" or "SR" preceding the serial number on the corner of your maturing bonds.

2 Find out the cash value of your bonds

At maturity, every holder of "S24" or "SR" bonds will receive the face value shown on the bond, plus a special cash bonus payment. In addition, depending on the type of bond you own and whether you have been clipping your interest coupons, you may also be entitled to receive interest up to an amount equal to the face value of your bonds. For example, if you own a $1,000 Coupon Bond with all interest coupons attached, you will receive at maturity:

	S24	SR
Face Value	$1,000.00	$1,000.00
Cash Bonus Payment	115.00	177.50
Regular and Compound Interest	1,000.00	1,000.00
TOTAL VALUE	$2,115.00	$2,177.50

If you have any questions about the value of your bonds, just ask the people where you bank or invest after October 1.

3 Special arrangements make it easy to reinvest

After October 1, simply present your "S24" and "SR" Series Canada Savings Bonds to your bank or other authorized redemption agent. All the paper work in connection with the redemption of your bonds will be done for you at that time. Holders of "SR" bonds will receive their funds immediately. For "S24" bonds the transfer of funds will take place automatically on November 1, the maturity date of this Series.

In the same transaction, you can sign up for your new Canada Savings Bonds. And this year there is a dual purchase limit. You may reinvest all proceeds from your maturing bonds, including face value, cash bonus and interest, in the new Series. In addition, you may also buy up to $30,000 of the new Bonds. It's a great way to keep your money working for you!

Act soon

There are more than 900,000 Canadians who own maturing bonds. If you are one of them, go to your bank, investment dealer, trust company or credit union as soon as possible after October 1 and avoid the rush!

New Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice

New Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1978 and yield an average annual interest of 8.90% when held to maturity in 1985. Each new bond earns interest of 8.50% the first year and 9% for each of the remaining 6 years.

And you have a choice of bonds. There's a Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year by cheque or, if you prefer, by direct deposit into your chequing or savings account. And a Compound Interest Bond that reinvests your interest automatically after the first year at the guaranteed annual rate of 8.90%.

Whichever type of bond you choose, you will own a safe, secure, investment which can be turned into instant cash whenever you need it. Buying Canada Savings Bonds has been a great Canadian tradition for over 30 years. They're the proven choice.

WILSON'S PHALAROPE — This dainty little shorebird nests on the grassy uplands bordering marshes. Unique among shorebirds, it is the female phalarope that sports the bright, strikingly patterned plumage, while the male, in much subdued tones, attends to nesting chores. He incubates the eggs! When swimming, phalaropes ride high on the water, spinning around in little circles, bills dipping below the surface to pick up aquatic insects stirred up by their activities. They also consume quantities of dry land insects when feeding on dry meadows bordering the marsh.

Greenpeace goes low key

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Greenpeace Foundation will try new, low-key tactics next March in a fourth attempt to bring about an end to the killing of seal pups off northern Newfoundland, president Patrick Moore of Vancouver said Monday.

"We're hoping to get away from sensationalism and confrontation, which has served its purpose in helping raise consciousness about the hunt," Moore said in a telephone interview from Corner Brook, Nfld.

Earlier in the day Moore had been convicted in provincial court at Corner Brook on a charge of interfering with the seal hunt.

The charge was laid March 18 after Moore sat on a harp seal pup on ice off the southern Labrador coast.

Moore was ordered by Magistrate Gordon Seabright to pay a $200 fine by November or spend 60 days in jail. Similar charges against Greenpeace legal adviser Peter Ballem of Vancouver were dismissed. Moore said he will appeal the conviction.

Greenpeace opposition to the hunt has been a regular feature of the March-April sealing season since members of the group first appeared at St. Anthony, near Newfoundland's northern tip, in 1976.

The organization, previously known worldwide for opposition to nuclear testing in the Pacific and to whaling, was the only protest group on the ice in 1978.

Unlike the two previous years, their operations offshore in 1978 were reduced by federal regulations that require all observers of the hunt to obtain permits.

Moore said the plans for next year are still under discussion and no firm decisions have been made but the use of a ship is being considered.

On previous expeditions, the Greenpeaceers travelled to the ice by helicopters from Blanc Sablon, Que., and St. Anthony.

The Progressive Rights Organization, formed two years ago by fishermen and some other northern Newfoundland residents to thwart the efforts of Greenpeace and other protest groups, is preparing to ask federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc to keep all observers off the ice next spring. Roy Pilgrim of St. Anthony, the organization's vice-president, said Sunday that no person except hunters and fisheries officers should be allowed on the ice during the hunt.

2,4D FINALLY USED

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — The 1978 campaign against Eurasian milfoil in Okanagan Lake ended today with the application of the controversial herbicide 2,4-D to five acres of Okanagan Lake.

The herbicide program has been opposed by several environmental groups and some local residents, and several confrontations between protesters and water investigation branch employees occurred during applications this summer.

The Okanagan Indian Band council had objected to applications in the north arm of the lake, but Peter Scales, spokesman for the water investigation branch, said the application today was made without incident.

Scales said crews applied 18 kilograms on each of the five acres. Buffer zones were established, alternate water supplies were provided and all area residents were informed, Scales said.

Results of tests of the program's effectiveness won't be known until next spring, he said.

It's time to sow lawn and store your bulbs

COME GARDENING with Doc Hartnoll

One of the more interesting questions asked at garden club meetings is: "What class is a Gladiolus, Tuberous Begonia or Dahlia?" They are perennial corms and tubers. Yet they're classed as annuals, since they can't withstand the severe cold weather and must be dug and stored in the fall to afford winter protection. Therefore, they are perennial, giving excellent bloom after planting, but must be classed as annual because they're not strong enough to stand our cold winters.

STORING: All of those I've mentioned are not difficult to store over winter. I like to make sure all my stored bulbs, tubers and corms are in an area where they can get some air circulation, so select a cool spot in the basement and put them in either a flat of sand, peat or moistened sawdust. Of the three I prefer a mix of sand and peat.

If I have a little rose or vegetable dust left, I'll place a tablespoonful in a paper bag, then put in a half dozen corms, seal the top of the bag and shake the corms around in the bag so the insecticide and fungicide will cover the corms.

DEHYDRATION: During long winter storage, check over the stored tubers like the begonias and dahlias as well as Canna roots. If they feel dehydrated, then sprinkle with water. (No plant food, just water). This puts back water into the tuber if it's stored where it is warmer than it likes. Keep them plump during the rest period and they'll respond well in the spring.

FALL LAWN FEEDING CONTINUES: We'll classify the lawn as a perennial growth. The more care and attention it receives, the better lawns you'll have in future.

You won't have a better time to sow seed than in the fall of the year. The weather is more cooperative to good growth conditions with lots of moisture, warm days and cool nights. You'll have to water less, yet the young seedlings will get enough moisture to get the most germination.

You'll no doubt mow the newly established lawn before putting the mower away for the winter. Most important will be treating the lawn with food such as Pink Vigoro. It feeds the roots over winter and the lawn grasses respond well in the spring with a well established, strong turf.

SPRING GARDENING STARTS NOW: Select the spring flowering bulbs you like around your home and get them in the ground. The earlier daffodils get in, the better bloom production you'll have. Tulips and crocuses as well as hyacinths can be planted a little later and I like to give them a little food at planting time.

I'm not going to recommend a high nitrogen fertilizer, but rather a few tablespoons of something like Vigoro Bone Meal. It acts slowly, meaning that when you apply it to the bulb growing area in the late fall, it will take about five months to become available to the feeder roots of the bulbs. There's no point in stimulating growth. Let the bulbs make up their flower buds at their own time.

If you have any questions, write to me at the Garden Information Centre, 165 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5H 3B8 enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LEEDS, England (Reuters) — Michel Delbert of France has won the Leeds international piano competition, securing a prize of $4,000 and a gold medal.

He was one of six finalists in the event, held in this northern English city every three years.

In Saturday's final round, Delbert played Mozart's Concerto in C (K 05).

Second place went to Diana Kacs of Brazil, who played Tchaikovsky's No. 1 in B flat.

IN CONFLICT CASE

Allegations denied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Directors of a provincially-funded agency have denied allegations that several of its committee members were involved in a conflict of interest in accepting grants for educational research.

Dr. Jaap Tuinman, chairman of the Educational Research Institute of British Columbia (ERIBC) which received $320,000 in provincial income in 1977-78, defended grants to members of a committee which advises the agency on which applications to accept.

Tuinman defended the award of grants to Dr. Henry Timko, who he said received his grant before joining the committee, and to Dr. Patricia Arlin, who received $9,000.

"She's outstanding in her field," he said.

"There's no question of her getting money because she was on the committee. She would have gotten the money anyway."

"Of the 30 or 40 grant applications received, there might be one or two from committee members."

The ERIBC, which finances research activities by teachers and school boards throughout the province, is run by a board of directors composed of representatives of the universities and school boards.

MONEY WASTED

Several board members have said that thousands of dollars were granted to committee members and their relatives and that many of the research projects were "silly, stupid and a waste of taxpayers' money."

Tuinman defended the agency's performance. "There is no general low evaluation of the ERIBC's work. The number of applications has increased and so has the participation of the school boards."

Ms. Arlin, a University of B.C. educational psychologist, said she was surprised at the charges of conflict of interest.

"I myself was concerned when I made the application that it might be perceived as conflict of interest. I asked if it was appropriate for me to apply for a grant."

She said she left the room when the advisory committee discussed the application.

Tuinman said the agency has since passed a regulation forbidding committee members from applying for grants, but he said this may discourage educationists from accepting the two-year, unpaid terms with the agency.

"We tried to be fair and now we've gone further to avoid public criticism."

ERIBC executive-director Audrey Sojensky said Ms. Arlin also received a $6,000 grant the previous year, but was not a committee member at the time. A $500 grant was also awarded to her husband, but that was a minor or discretionary grant and was not handled by the committee on which his wife sat, she said.

Funeral services said for king of letters

VICTORIA (CP) — Funeral services were held today for Maurice P. Wrixon who died Friday at the age of 79 years.

He was known as the king of Canada's letters-to-the-editor writers, bombarding newspapers across the country with his letters.

Wrixon retired to Victoria in 1948 after working for more than 28 years in South America, the last eight with the Shell oil company in Venezuela.

An ardent fisherman, his exploits were once the subject of a National Geographic magazine article.

RECIPE

Chilled Cherry Wine Soup

To add a touch of class to your menu try this! 6 cups fresh B.C. cherries 3 cups water 1 - 4 inch cinnamon stick 4 whole cloves 2 teaspoons lemon juice 1 tablespoon quick cooking tapioca 1/4 cup sugar 1 cup red dinner wine lemon for garnish

Combine cherries, water, cinnamon and cloves in a saucepan. Heat to boiling; then simmer 15 minutes. Mash cherries occasionally with a fork or potato masher. Remove from heat. Press through a coarse sieve into a bowl. (Cherry pits, cinnamon and cloves will be caught in sieve). Return to saucepan. Add lemon juice, tapioca and sugar. Heat, stirring constantly to a full rolling boil; then simmer, covered, 15 minutes until mixture slightly thickens. Remove from heat and chill, covered, several hours. Just before serving, stir in wine. Serves 8.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

INSULATION

Because of high prices for gasoline, more people have been staying close to home this summer. That hasn't been bad with air conditioning. But with electric rates soaring, it's been expensive to keep cool.

One way to beat both the heat and the high cost of air conditioning is to install proper insulation. Attic floor insulation alone can save 25 per cent or more of the cost.

Winter savings are even greater, because in most climates heating bills are higher than those for cooling. The National Bureau of Standards and the Office of Consumer Affairs have jointly stated that combined heating-cooling savings from six inches of insulation may be returned in a year or two.

To determine whether an attic floor is adequately insulated, the home owner should measure the thickness of existing insulation. Less than six inches isn't considered enough.

According to the National Mineral Wool Insulation Association, if the attic already has some insulation, new insulation that doesn't have a vapor barrier should be laid on top of the old. It's an easy do-it-yourself job.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO PROCEED WITH LOCAL IMPROVEMENT PROGRAMME

Notice is hereby given pursuant to Section 589 of the Municipal Act that Council of the District of Terrace intends to proceed with the construction of certain works hereinafter described as a Local Improvement under the Initiatives Plan.

A. General Description of the Work

Drainage, upgrading and paving of Keith Avenue between Braun Street and Molitor Street.

B. The Programme is estimated to cost $128,585.00, including provision for interim finance charges, advertising costs, engineering costs, expenses relating to security issuing by-laws and contingencies.

C. The share or proportion of the estimated cost of the Programme to be borne by the District of Terrace relative to intersections and frontage reductions is $6,316.20.

D. The share or proportion of the estimated cost of the Programme to be borne by the taxable land abutting on said works is $122,268.80.

E. The total frontage deemed taxable for the purposes of the Programme is 8922.67 feet.

F. The share or proportion of the Programme to be borne by the parcels of land benefitting from or abutting on the work is estimated to cost $14.41 per taxable front foot at completion.

G. Debt retirement including interest will be in twenty (20) annual installments, calculated on the taxable front footage at $1.57 per foot.

Further notice is hereby given that a copy of this notice has been mailed to the owner(s) of the parcels of land liable to be specially charged for the cost of said works, and unless within one (1) month of the date of publication of this notice, a majority of the owners representing at least one half of the value of the parcels which are liable to be specially charged, petition the Council of the District of Terrace not to proceed with it, the work may be undertaken as a Local Improvement.

Petitions shall be lodged with the Clerk, and shall be deemed to be presented to the Council when so lodged, of which every owner of a parcel of land liable to be specially charged under this programme is liable to take notice and be governed accordingly.

REAL ESTATE

ALL-OVER CARPETING IS "AT HOME" in any room of the house, say experts from The Eureka Home Care Institute. A random sheared wall carpet complements a patterned needlepoint on the floor, providing an attractive backdrop for Mom's sewing corner in the family room (left). A terra-cotta nylon carpet continues up one wall in the living room to form a graphic mountainscape (right). (Photos courtesy of The Carpet and Rug Institute and Monsanto)

FUEL BILLS WILL BE LOWER IN THE SUMMER AND WINTER on homes covered with vinyl siding. According to the American Society for Testing and Materials test C-177, vinyl siding provides 24.8% greater insulation against heat and cold than metal siding.

TOP: Carport and entry at the side of the house present a remodeling opportunity to the owners of this home.
BOTTOM: Artist envisions the home with the carport enclosed to provide more living space. The new room has a dramatic Anderson Perma-Shield casement angle bay window. Entry has been moved to the front of the home, and the old sliding windows in front have been replaced with Anderson awning windows for better ventilation.

expansion enables home to grow along with family

One of the best "moves" a homeowner with a growing family can make is to look into the possibility of expansion before putting a "for sale" sign out on his front lawn.

Take a typical home with a covered carport and side entrance. Converting the carport into a year-round room gives the owner the extra room he needs. Moving the entrance to the front of the home and installing quality, ventilating windows adds immeasurably to the over-all appearance of the house.

Placing a dramatic, easement angle bay window in the wall of the new room opens it to broad views and provides light. The casements, which can be opened at the turn of a crank, also provide top-to-bottom ventilation.

Additional ventilation is achieved by replacing the old sliding windows in the front of the house with awning windows.

Operating windows such as casement and awning units also eliminate dependence on air conditioning when the outside temperature is comfortable.

Quality windows such as Perma-Shield units manufactured by Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., however, offer more besides views and ventilation.

In many homes, considerable heat loss may occur through and around windows and doors. The combination of wood — a natural insulator — double-pane insulating glass and factory-applied weatherstripping reduces heat loss, which is passed on to the homeowner in the form of lower fuel bills.

Exterior surfaces on Andersen Perma-Shield window and gliding door units are encased in tough rigid vinyl, which protects the wood core sash and frame and assures snug closure. Insulating glass, standard in Perma-Shield windows, also does away with the task of putting up and taking down storm sash.

The homeowner winds up not only with more living space, but with up-to-date, low-maintenance windows that improve the curb appeal of his home, while reducing the cost of heating and air conditioning.

IT'S UP, UP, AND AWAY WITH TODAY'S EXCITING NEW CARPETING IDEAS

Contemporary carpets are moving up, up, and away from the floor.

They're scaling the walls, clinging to ceilings, lining banquettes and seating platforms and providing comfortable conversation pits.

Homemakers from coast to coast have found all-over carpeting to be a distinctive device. It not only adds warmth, textural excitement and continuity to a room, but conveys a feeling of plush, sensuous comfort.

Designers from Monsanto say that all-over carpeting — depending upon its color, texture, size and design — can lend a spacious feeling to a small room and make a large room seem cozier. It also gives a "maximized effect to a room with a minimum of furnishings."

The possibilities are "almost unlimited" for all-over carpeting's use, says Allen Sale of the Carpet and Rug Institute (CRI). Carpeting can camouflage a problem wall, complement an unusual corner or dramatically shape an artistic wall graphic.

Wall carpeting in a solid color makes "a good hanging surface, useful for display of paintings and photographs," says Ian McMeekin, a Burlington House designer.

Not only is all-over carpeting aesthetically pleasing, but it's practical, too. McMeekin says: "For example, you can create a comfortable seating area and an extra bed by building a banquette or platform from plywood or fiberboard. Upholster it with a thick strip of plush carpet that flows across the floor, then climbs up the banquette or platform."

Voilà! You've created a multi-purpose room that can be used for family television viewing, a teenage "clubhouse," a guest bedroom and a toddler's playroom — without investing in expensive furniture.

If you're looking for an ideal sound buffer or an excellent insulating device, you can't go wrong with carpeting, adds Allen Sale of CRI.

Carpeting absorbs noise and softens sound. It also keeps heat and air conditioning in. Surveys indicate that you can save from 11 to 14 percent on your heating and cooling bills by splurging on all-over carpeting.

Should you move, or get tired of your carpeted wall, ceiling or banquette, simply cut it up into area rugs.

The average $1 bill stays in circulation for 18 months.

The run from birth to death

TOURISTALK

FROM TOURISM BRITISH COLUMBIA

One of nature's great mysteries delectable sockeye. And the most is beginning to unfold in B.C. It's famous of the river's many sockeye that becomes highly visible in key races is the Adams River its last dramatic stages.

The salmon are running. And in their relentless drive to reach their home spawning grounds, they just may push their way a few—and sometimes difficult—kilometres up river from the sea, or, if they are sockeye or chinooks, battle incredible distances up through watersheds, as far as 1,600 kilometres inland.

Salmon, B.C.'s most fascinating natural resource, has a short life but great strength. It is mysterious in its ways and hides from us most of its life—until, in the last phase of its life cycle, it migrates from the sea's deep reaches to power its way up rapids and over falls to the freshwater shallows of its birth. Here it will spawn and then die.

You can witness this ever-fascinating spectacle. During late summer and right up into December spawning salmon can be viewed in a number of rivers and streams accessible by road.

This year it so happens that the famous Adams River sockeye run will be a major one, because it has a cycle of peaking every four years.

The Fraser River is the greatest salmon river of North America. It boasts all of B.C.'s five salmon species—sockeye, pink, chinook, coho and chum. The most renowned Fraser Salmon is the Chamber criticizes labour

HALIFAX (CP) — Harold Crosby, retiring president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, criticized labor today, saying unawareness, selfishness and opportunism were behind their demands for excessive wages in recent years.

The Halifax accountant, in his wind-up speech to the annual convention after a year as president, also blamed high civil service salaries and public demands for government services for adding to the tax burden and aggravating inflation.

He will be succeeded as president by David Braide of Toronto, a vice-president of Canadian Industries Ltd.

Crosby also said he perceives a new willingness by

Canadians to "live within our means, to produce more before we demand more, to keep our expectations within rational limits."

But much of his speech was a tough criticism of labor which he said created a high-wage structure that was not matched by higher productivity and hurt the competitiveness of industry.

He said the worker may be unaware of the connection between his wage increase and the economic consequences that follow.

"Often the workers know only too well that they have a strong position, and that they can get a wage increase at the expense of some weaker group in society."

10 die in crash

CAIRO (AFP) — Ten persons were burned to death on the Cairo-Alexandria Highway on Saturday when a tanker truck loaded with aviation fuel swerved to avoid a goat, bounced off a lamp post and collided with a taxi. All the occupants of the taxi died in the ensuing explosion and fire. The truck driver, who jumped to safety, was arrested.

65 KILLED
MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — A truck carrying dozens of farm workers overturned and plunged into an irrigation canal, killing 65 of them and injuring 11 others.

Heavy Duty Truck Mechanic - Must have diesel experience. $9.81 per hr.

Body Repairman - Fully qualified with TQ.

Construction Electrician - Terrace. Must be fully qualified. Union rate.

Maintenance Workers - Previous experience preferred. $6 per hr.

Composing Room Foreman - Must be journeyman or have 4 yrs. experience. TBA.

Dear Abby

Running Is Good For His Heart

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband started running every morning before work for his health. He said he felt like a new man, and he really looked terrific. He lost 15 pounds and started to pay more attention to his diet.

Well, everything was wonderful until he started running after work. I thought it was rather odd for him to come home from work, shower, put on cologne and comb his hair to go running! Then I found out why, quite by accident.

I was driving along the parkway where he runs, when I saw him saying goodbye to a blonde who was getting into her car. She had on running clothes, too. Such a goodbye I never saw outside a movie. They were embracing and looking into each other's eyes like a pair of young lovers. I don't know how old she is, but my husband is 57.

He doesn't know I saw him. Should I tell him? I don't want him to quit running, because it's been so good for him. I can't run with him because I'm not the type. What do you say? RUNNER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't blame the running. If you husband didn't run, he'd probably run into a blade somewhere else. Of course you should tell him your saw him. And let the next move be his.

DEAR ABBY: I've been playing Mah-Jongg for over 30 years and I never cheated in my life. However, last night I really don't know what came over me, but I wanted so desperately to make a hand that I cheated.

Well, a dear friend who was out at the time noticed what I had done. Although she didn't say anything to me, I could tell by the expression on her face that she saw me cheat. The rest of the evening I felt terrible, and that night I couldn't sleep a wink.

I know that I will never cheat again, but how can I rectify this with my good friend? I don't want to lose her friendship over a stupid mistake.

Should I just let it pass? Or should I say something to my friend? Sign me...

VERY, VERY SORRY

DEAR SORRY: You are obviously suffering from a very troubled conscience, so go ahead and clear the air with your friend. You'll feel better.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 27, and for the first time in my life I'm in love. He's 34, divorced, and his name is Paul.

Paul and his wife (Theresa) lived next door to my mother, who has been like a second mother to Theresa. Paul and Theresa have two kids. Paul moved out, but Theresa is still my mother's neighbor.

My problem is my mother. Mom should have been a nun. She goes to church every morning and lives by the Bible. Mom insists that in the eyes of the church Paul and Theresa are still married even though their divorce was final a year ago. Mom says if I marry Paul, I'll burn in hell for living in sin.

Mom told me that Theresa told her that she and Paul never stopped sleeping together. Paul told me that he hasn't slept with Theresa since he moved out of the house. I love Paul and he loves me, but I don't know what to believe. What should I do?

MIXED UP IN MINNESOTA

DEAR MIXED UP: Have a heart to heart talk with Paul and get the facts. If he's still sleeping with Theresa, perhaps you should bow out of the picture and give them a chance to reconcile.

But if Paul loves you as he says he does, and it's over between him and his ex, regardless how much your mother meddles, you and Paul will make it to the hitching post.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — HUGE HURDY-GURDY BEGUILED BIG LUG.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: G equals C

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1978

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)

Indifference is encountered from someone you relied on for support, but don't let your enthusiasm be dampened. Another may unexpectedly back you up.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21)

No problem is too difficult for you to solve today even though they appear monstrous. Just take one at a time, and look at it rationally.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)

Seeing both sides of a question can help judgment as long as it does not keep you from choosing a course of action. Be more decisive.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)

Your normally good nature is ruffled by word-of-mouth news of a friend, but when you check up, a misunderstanding is at the root of the trouble.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)

Some very strong impulses are governing your attitude toward mate or close associate, and you had better ease up or risk the chance of antagonizing.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Moodiness is indicated, but try to subdue it and turn your thoughts toward those around you so they can snap you out of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

You have an urge to go on a buying spree, but first consider things you really need and eliminate the frills. Those bills are only a month away.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23)

Worry is a part of living, but unproductive if there are no remedies. Channel your thoughts so that you are occupied with solvable problems.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

A very influential person is coming into your life, probably through social contact but could be business. Be aware of opportunities this offers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

If your wardrobe is not too spiffy, now is the time to dress it up. Mate or close friend should be invited along to guide you in your choices.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

There is plenty of enthusiasm you can incite in others, but make certain you don't send them on wild goose chases.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

There is a rivalry for your attention, and the word to the wise is not to let your head be turned by flattery.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great originality, inventiveness and imagination. You have a constant craving for knowledge and should never stop educating yourself, since the Virgoan is often the one who breaks through old boundaries for greater attainment and opens new vistas for all.

You have a deeply sensitive nature, are unorthodox at unexpected moments; could make a skilled scientist, researcher in technology, educator, actor or writer. In the latter field, you could especially succeed as a dramatic critic, historian or writer of technical treatises.

Birthdate of: David McCallum, actor.
